The land is forever, the rain will always fall, the sun will remain in the skies. Planets will still be whirling centuries after the leaders of today are dust. Yes, man is a frail thing, short-lived and unimportant in the large scope of the world. Yet he alone can create what must also last; the books, the thoughts, the ideals of an era. The thoughts and actions of now, and of every time, must be recorded for those who will follow, for they will ask, "What were you like? What did you learn?"

The yearbook staff sees Clay's students as dynamic individuals who are increasing the scope of their lives in all areas—physical, intellectual, social, spiritual; and to show you, and future generations, how these increases were nurtured, this 1966 Crystal was compiled to bring you Clay's - -

administration builds

The 1966 Oregon School Board of Education members are Mr. Paul Revenaugh, Mr. Thomas Robinette, Mr. Edward Berger, Mr. Panda Pappas, and Mr. Rolland Turnow. At the organizational meeting of the Board, Mr. Robinette was chosen to serve as president.

Pictured in a familiar situation speaking to the student body, is Mr. James O'Brien, principal of Clay Senior High.

Secretaries Mrs. Sarahella Dunson, Mrs. Dorothy Sanders and Mrs. Nancy Bahnsen perform the many office duties at Clay.

sound school policy

Administering the policies of a large school system has never been an easy task. The problems faced by the 1966 Board of Education were both many and difficult. Added to the difficult problem of a rapidly expanding school population was the new state law which required that the schools be in operation 180 days, despite the possibility of bad weather. Moreover, the school administrators were concerned about maintaining Clay's accreditation in the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools in the face of a shortage of funds. However, the administration did not devote all of its time to these problems. It continued to expand the vocational program of instruction, introduced new methods and materials in the academic areas, and progressed generally in the direction of excellence in instructional programming and physical facilities.

The many papers on his desk attest to the heavy workload and variety of jobs met daily by Superintendent Vaughn J. Ullman

Mr. Bert Fleitz, assistant principal, is here advising a student concerning college preparation Counselors Mr. Harold Potter, Mrs. Janet Arner, and Mrs. Henry Spring have aided many students in solving personal problems and making career plans.

Mrs. Charlotte Cramer and Mrs. Rose Campbell as they were often seen in the Annex halls.

teachers pictured

A familiar sight to Eagle fans was ticket taker, Mr. Michael Casey.

Traveling companions throughout the year were Mr. Andrew Pocse and Mr. Walter Martishus.

Mrs. Nancy Bricker, band director, and Miss Phyllis Jones, girls physical education instructor, occasionally found a second for casual conversation.

Friendly conversation eased the cold during trips between the buildings for Mr. Michael Casey, Mr. John Feilhauer and Mr. Fred Skelton.

outside classrooms

Mr. Rodney Pyle ambles along easily on his way home from a day's teaching at Clay.

The cameraman picked Mrs. Elizabeth Needles out of the crowd to prove that teachers, too, can be enthusiastic when the game is close.

Mrs. Fern Morse, English teacher, explains some aspects of the strange staging necessary for a full appreciation of the play under discussion, "Our Town."

Occasionally, athletics, club activities and other outside interests of high school students tend to overshadow the real purposes of school life. It has been the good fortune of Clay scholars to have ample opportunity to participate in extra-curricular activities while enjoying a full and rounded program of studies.

Unlike those schools which treat every student as a college candidate, Clay has continued to offer a full curriculum; in addition to the traditional academic courses, Clay has maintained and expanded its vocational training program. In addition to college preparatory courses, instruction is offered in business careers, homemaking, mechanical drawing, auto mechanics, shop work and dental assistant techniques. With such a wide scope of work available, Clay students can prepare for any career.

Miss Jean Garey, Latin teacher, and Mrs. Susan Wallace, English teacher, exchange comments on a magazine article.

Mr. Charles Waggoner, physics instructor, accepts a gift of candy from Mr. Lawrence Haynes, English teacher.

Mrs. Eleanor Swartz, Everyday Problems teacher; Mrs. Eleanor Mook, American history teacher; and Mrs. Margaret Ravenscroft, mathematics teacher sign in at the office before class.

Teachers gather for coffee after completing a hard day's work of scoring exams and recording grades.

Librarians Mrs. Edith Huebner and Mrs. Helen Konoff were often sent to the card catalogue by students Business teachers Mr. Tennyson Huyck, Mrs. Elizabeth Needles, and Mr. John Euphrat gaze in the direction of curious students.

teachers contribute time, interest,

Mrs. Charlotte Cramer, mathematics teacher, explains the principles of constructing an angle to one of her geometry classes. Geometry requires that both the teacher and students grasp special relationships for understanding.

Since both Mr. L. Owen Ziebold and Mr. Walter Martishius taught health classes in the Annex, they often exchanged views.

and ability toward student development

The academic standards at Clay have been traditionally high due, in large measure, to the excellence of the faculty members. Often they contribute their time after working hours to prepare teaching materials or to supervise student activities. Vacation time for most teachers is spent attending university classes in an effort to increase their personal knowledge so that they can add vitality and interest to their subject matter. When teaching ability is added to the knowledge thus gained—ability which is enriched through self-evaluation and self-imposed training sessions—the quality of instruction moves dramatically upward. It is these factors, time, interest, and ability which distinguish Clay's teachers and enlarge the scope of achievement.

Mr. Richard Emery and June Stevenson photograph stratified squamous epithelium with the aid of special camera equipment. The results of their efforts is pictured below.

Mr. James Barnes, sociology teacher, smiles as he answers a question about an item on his informative bulletin board Similarity of interests are apparent in Mr. Andrew Porse and Mr. Gary Niederhauser since they both teach history and coach football faculty members generate curiosity,

Mr. Rodney Pyle has been teaching at Clay longer than most of his colleagues; he has been on the staff for 25 years. Mr. Pyle teaches civics and economics.

Mr. William Coontz, who teaches business machines and typing, is pictured here examining an adding machine.

Mr. James Routson, mathematics teacher, and Mr. Kermit Hoesman, biology teacher, pause for a moments conversation.

promote learning

Mr. Jack Hoefflin, civics and economics, Mr. Richard Emery, biology, and Mr. Russell Scott, drivers training, shared a ride to school throughout the year.

instructors prepare

Dental assistants Linda Smenner, Barbara Metli, and Monika O'Konski practice learned techniques on Jean Hoffman.

Mr. Charles West, mechanical drawing teacher, shows a draft to Clark Gordon and Chuck Kiggins.

Mr. K. R. Bradley explains the gauges of an automobile to auto mechanics student Steve Lajts.

The traditional role of the high school is that of preparing students for college, a career in business, or marriage. Because of the modern need for skilled labor, Clay has added a third dimension to its curriculum—the vocational courses.

The dental assistants course is a one year course open to senior girls who are interested in working in dental offices or going on to college and becoming dental hygienists. During the first semester, the girls observe in a dental office once a month, make models of teeth, and learn to mount X-rays. This year the third class of dental assistants completed the course.

The mechanical drawing course is a two year course preparing students for drafting jobs. This year seven seniors were the first to complete the mechanical drawing course at Clay. After the two year mechanical drawing course, the students receive a certificate from the state of Ohio; they are now prepared for a variety of drafting jobs. Of the first five daily periods spent in mechanical drawing, one is devoted to mathematics and one to lecture. The first semester deals primarily with the drawing of machine parts, while the second semester consists of architecture and the drawing of house plans. Near the end of his senior year, the mechanical drawing student draws blueprints of the house he would like to live in. The mechanical drawing class has contributed much to Clay High School by drawing charts for the student council and maps of the school campus, Oregon and Toledo.

The auto mechanics vocational course devotes its time to the study of the complexities of the automobile. It prepares the boys for a career in the field of auto repair.

In October, the auto mechanics and mechanical drawing classes took a field trip to Greenfield Village. The drawing class observed and compared colonial and early American architecture, while the mechanics class was concerned with the antique cars in Ford Museum.

pupils in job skills

Mrs. Opal Stryzek points out the structure of a tooth to the dental assistants class.

Mr. Bradley discusses an automobile engine with the auto mechanics class.

Virginia Strzelecki prepares to demonstrate her skill at the wheel to her Drivers Education teacher, Mr. Russell Scott

Mr. William Crow, Drivers Training and Civics teacher, and his class listen to guest speakers, Mr. Werner and Mr. Mueller, from the Ohio Citizen's Bank

Mr. Bruce Berkey and Mr. Donald Keiser demonstrate the electrical components of modern gasoline engines to their industrial arts classes

students train in

The Practical Arts program this year featured growth in quality. The Home Economics classes, working from the concept of "building a good home for future families," entered whole heartedly into learning the personal benefits derived from scientific nutrition, sewing everything from shifts to chapeaus, and utilizing inexpensive materials for everyday decoration and utility. These classes are proving that home management requires intelligence, imagination and endurance.

With an increased number of student participating in the shop courses, increased ingenuity and co-operation were required of both faculty and students to provide the quality instruction consistent with Clay's high standards.

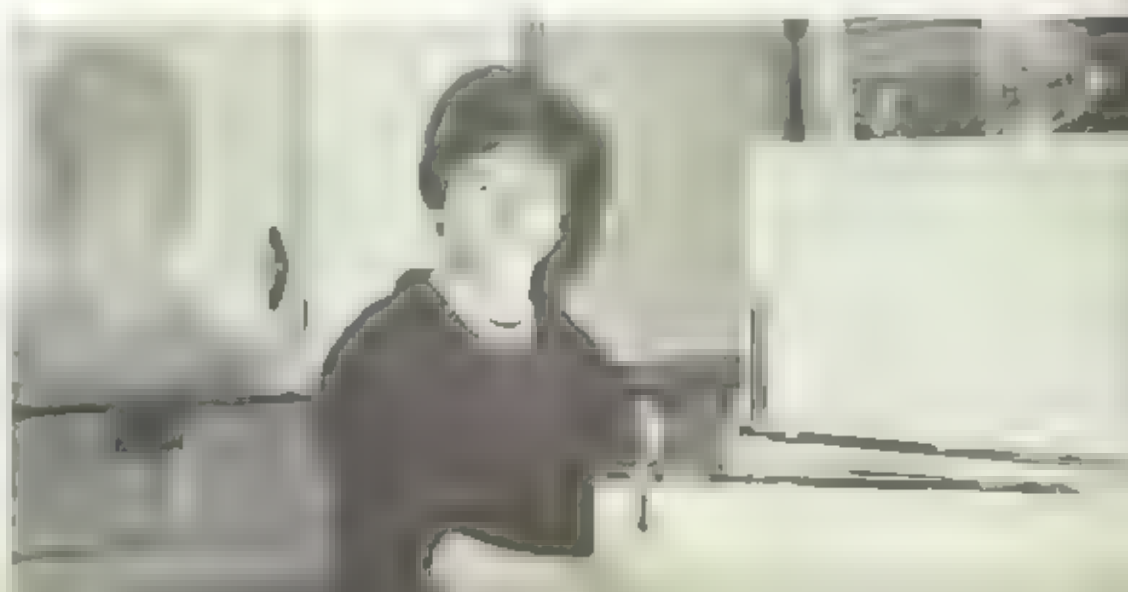

Industrial arts teacher, Robert Kinney, pauses from his work to greet the Crystal photographer.

Instructor of Home Economics, Mrs. Margaret Wiles, practices what she teaches.

Raiding the icebox? No, Mrs. Erleen Johnson is taking stock of the food available for her home economics classes.

practical arts

In the Driver's Education course, safe driving habits introduced in the classroom are applied on the road. Each student taking the course drives the new car once a week and observes other students at the wheel during his other three classes.

The industrial arts curricula is divided into wood and pattern making, mechanical and architectural graphic art, and metals. In the metal working classes, the students also learn how to draw blue prints of machines. Welding and small engine repair are also taught.

students blend

Art teacher, Mr. George Hauter displays the creativity of his students

Art, music, and physical education are cast into the cauldron of the Clay High student's academic life. Immaturity evaporates, and in its place is developed a basic understanding of creativity and self-expression through art and music, as well as sportsmanship, cooperation, and maturity through the physical education program. The Clay student body is thus equipped to face the practical world and to pursue a limitless future.

The students of Clay High are unified in mind and action. In music, art and sports, the entire school body is harmonized into a group worthy of the highest honors.

From such kindling blazes forth an eternal flame of pride, dignity, and respect to reside within the hearts of the students for the rest of their lives.

Miss Phyllis Jones, girls' physical education instructor, introduces her class to various tumbling stunts.

work and play

Randy Samu listens to Mr. Theodore Federic, boys' physical education instructor, explaining the rules of basketball with the help of his student teacher, Mr. Mable.

Band director Mrs. Nancy Brcker, poses with the shiny tubas of her band.

The choir and glee club director, Mr. Bernard Falor, interprets the language of music to John Nelson, Ralph Hancock, Richard Harting, and Rick Ellsworth.

students excelled in leadership, character, desire

Fillamay Thompson brings some important points in the induction service to the attention of fellow members of the National Honor Society. Listening to her with obvious pleasure are Society members Rick Hecklinger, Peggy Copus, Dolores Mominee, Linda Renner, Nancy Wagner, Marsha Gross, Rhoda VanScoy, Carol Fleitz and Dan Arquette. Maintaining a long tradition at Clay, these members helped conduct the spring induction ceremony, complete with robes and candles.

Preparation for the new member induction service takes both time and effort. Members of The National Honor Society, Darrell Berger, John Szuch, Larry Stewart and Bruce Winchester smile broadly at the comments tossed their way by a passing student. The palms were for the ceremony.

The National Honor Society means a great deal to Clay High School. Membership is the highest award that Clay can offer its students. Members are chosen on the basis of exceptional scholarship, leadership, service, and character.

Their day came in the spring when an assembly was held to induct these outstanding juniors and seniors into the "Society." The auditorium was hushed as each candle was lit and the speeches of previous members welcomed the newcomers.

Pictured as they put on robes prior to the induction of new members are National Honor Society members Janice Fabian, William Hofbauer and Kathy Niehaus.

student council activities increase in scope and number

The Student Council of Clay Senior High School had a busy year, both with the affairs of the school and with the business of the Toledo Area Student Council.

Not only did the Council create a festive atmosphere throughout the high school buildings with its Christmas decorations, but it also continued the other activities long associated with it. The Council members again sold ice cream during the lunch periods to procure funds which they dispersed to needy causes throughout the year; they again sponsored the "Backward Soc Hop," helped in the selection of representatives for the Radio and TV High School Quiz, and promoted the second annual Fun Night.

In an effort to secure funds to be spent on new trophy cases, Council members challenged staff members from radio station WTOD to a fight to the finish on the basketball court.

As if this were not enough to keep any group busy, the Council also pushed harder than ever in the annual charity drive, and still it found time to initiate other activities. Council members assisted in conducting class elections for the first time in the history of the school.

Working in an area which is foreign to the knowledge of most students, the Student Council this year actively participated in an area wide program of the Toledo Area Student Council which had as its goal the bringing back of night football to the Toledo schools. Whether they succeed or fail in doing this remains to be seen, but growth in community activity is in itself at least a partial reward for members working at this project.

Keeping pace with the school population and the increased activity of the group, the Student Council had more members this year than ever before. In the above picture a portion of the Council sits in readiness as President Joe Christian calls the meeting to order. Council members pictured are Pat Shearer, Beverly Emch, Cindy Davis, John Ritzenthaler, Steve Clark, Doug Asbury, Val Stevens, Kathy Niehaus, Diane Cedoz, Janice Fabian, Sue Munier and Linda McCroskey. Pictures of the other members of the Student Council will be found on the following page.

Waiting for the agenda of the meeting to be distributed by Yolanda Danyi. Peggy Copus, Joe Loomis and Vick Helman are the remaining members of the Student Council. Miss Jones, Rose Klorer, Caro Dussau, Kathy Morse, Judy Zimmerman, Linda Sigurdson, Jean Koester, Jim Weir, Bob Groll, Ron Terry, Russ Codwell, Rick Rothbard, Martin VanSoy, and Steve Shiskey. Student Council meetings were held during the seventh period each Monday on the first floor of the Annex.

Members of the Student Council carried on the tradition of decorating the school buildings for the Christmas season. Admiring the work of other Council members are the officers of the group: Joe Loomis, vice president, Sue Munier, secretary, Joe Christian, president, and Linda McCroskey, treasurer. This particular tree adorned the lobby at the main entrance of the school during the 1965 season.

senior girls carve future through dental training

The Future Dental Assistants Club came into being at about the time that the Dental Assistants course was first offered to Clay students; hence, it is one of the newest of clubs in school.

The girls who belong to this club are planning a career in some field of dentistry, and the goal of the club is to further the preparation of the members in their chosen profession.

Since only girls taking this course can join the club, and since only seniors take the course, the Dental Assistants Club remained one of the smallest clubs at Clay High.

Monice Okonski, Carol Keiser, Sue DeAntonio, and Karen Nelson carve life-like teeth from a cake of soap. The soap dentures are for study; the soap chips are for cleaning the hands of the students.

Mrs. Erlean Johnson, Chef's Club adviser, and club members Denny Grant, Merle DeLong, Bruce Winchester, Jim Rippey, Jerry Corlett, Rick Fouty, and George Kollarik eagerly reach for samples of Pete Cowie's most recent cooking success. Boys in the Chef's Club not only prepare snacks but they also learn about nutrition, meal planning and preparation, and graceful table decor.

High white hats associated with the chef's trade add to the authenticity and mood of the Chef's Club. Pictured in the garb of their trade are Melvin Overholser, Lewis Vanco, Randy Commarn, John Brice, Pat McCormick, Terry Spring and Jerry LaCourse.

Portraying the parts of guests are Terry Bell and John Welsh. They are being served by Tom Whittaker, Art Sradeja, Mike Foster and Larry Stewart.

Work for the members of the Chef's Club is never very far away. They are often considered as the catering service of Clay High, for they prepare and serve snacks, teas, and dinners to both the student body and faculty. Even so, they volunteered for more work than usual this year.

The Chef's Club worked on the breakfasts given separately for members of the Sophomore, Junior, and Senior classes. The purpose of these breakfasts was three-pronged; to encourage students to eat breakfast, to provide a wholesome social activity, and to give the chefs additional experience in food preparation.

While the Chef's Club functions as a unique and separate group, they occasionally worked with members of the FHA in social and philanthropic operations. For instance, these groups working together had a party for orphans from St. Anthony's Villa. On another occasion they combined forces to prepare and to serve dinner to the entire faculty staff.

While Safety Club members are interested in all phases of safety, the majority of their efforts is directed toward traffic safety. Pictured with the automobile in which they practice this safety are club members Sandy Wooley, Ann Kosta, Bonnie Harvath, Pat Stemen, Pat Ledbetter, Sandy Lind, Barbara Roadarmel, Gloria Horner, Bernie Erdman, Ed

Coughlin, Dave Mlynsek, Don Yeary, Rick Fouty and Jim Hess. During the year these students have conducted a poster campaign on the behalf of safety on the highway and sponsored a safety assembly. Movies on safe practices and speakers who stress safety constitute the more important activities of the Safety Club.

The Drivers Education car serves as a handy tool for members of the Safety Club. Club officers Jim Sandwisch, president; Karen Hunter, treasurer; Connie Worthington, secretary; and Pam Ledbetter, president, show an interest in the strange machinery which is normally hidden from view under the hood. Club adviser, Mr. Russell Scott, explained the functions of the engine parts to the group gathered with him.

the safety club--

knew that their job would not be an easy one. Their efforts had to be directed toward creating an awareness of safety factors in each of the pupils at Clay High.

To accomplish this club members put posters up in the halls which stressed that safety is a matter for all, at all times and in all places; they illustrated the fact that safety is caution, consideration and courtesy. To bolster this concept of safety, the club displayed pictorial proof of what can happen when safety rules are ignored. Though the pictures were gruesome, they provided graphic proof of the Club's unstated motto, to shortcut safety rules is to shortcut life.

harvey proves hilarious success as limelighter premiere

Standing by in total bewilderment is Jan Fabian as Darrell Berger and Ray Donnell attempt to erase big problems in one of the scenes from "Harvey."

The task of the performers in this scene from "Harvey" was to convey to the audience expressions of contempt, ignorance and guilt

Obviously unaware of Stacy Taylor's pet rabbit, Harvey, Jan Fabian conducts this interview scene as if all were right with the world and this man before her.

young thespians master dramatic skills

productions inspire actors and audiences

After successfully opening the season with the extremely hilarious one-act play, "The Man in the Bowler Hat," the Limelighters kept the footlights warm by rushing immediately into their production of the all school play, "Harvey." Under the very capable direction of Mr. Fred Skelton and Mrs. Susan Norris, and with fine cooperation on the part of the cast and crew which had been drawn from each school class, "Harvey" caught the imagination of its appreciative audience and sent them into thunderous laughter.

Encouraged by the success of "Harvey," The Limelighters mounted the boards once more in March to bring "The Miracle Worker" to the students of Clay. This intense drama, while extremely hard to cast because of children parts in it, was nonetheless a smashing success.

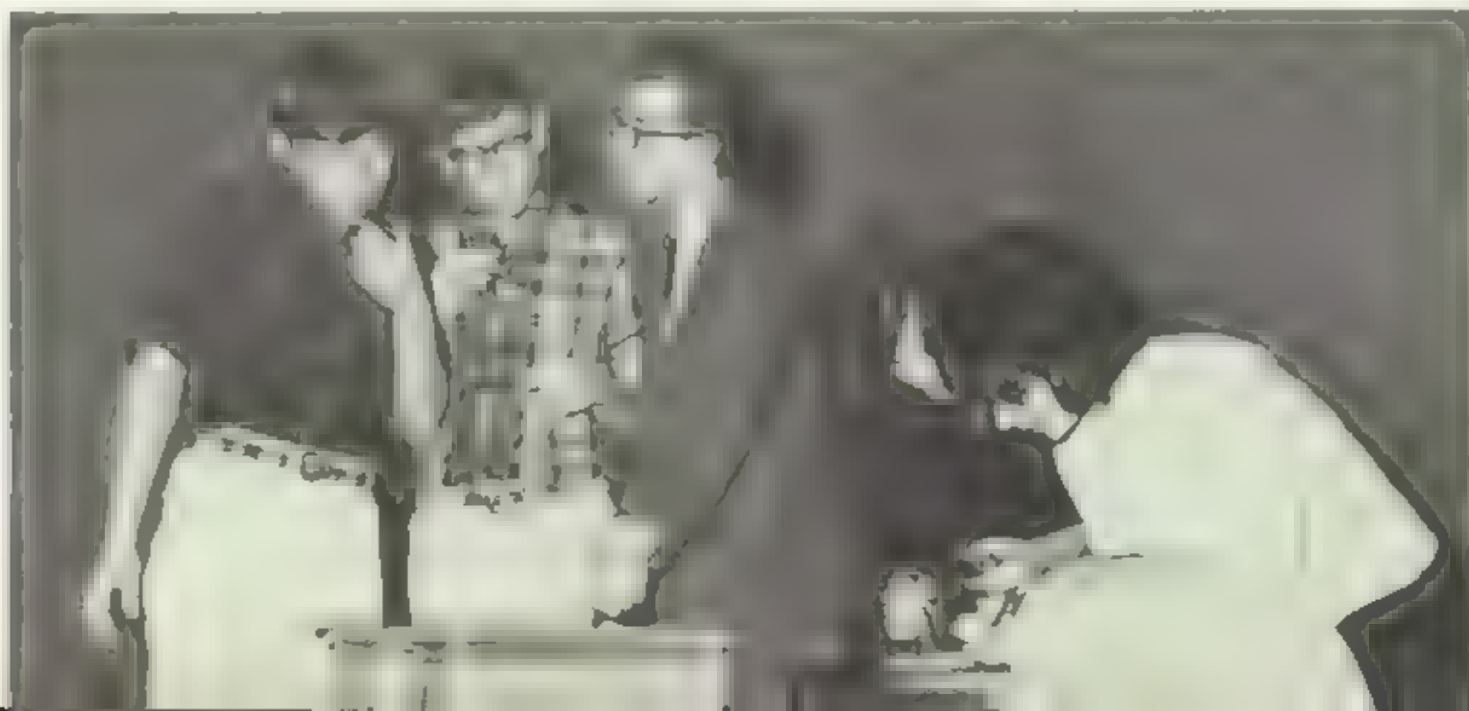

For a change of pace, the Limelighters cooperated with the entire school and the music department to bring the musical, "The Sound of Music," to the Clay student body and the citizens of Oregon in a May finale to a very successful dramatic season.

Contempt is registered on the face of Debbie McNutt as her brother, Elwood P. Dowd, displays his imaginary friend, Harvey. Stacy Taylor, in the role of Elwood, managed to keep the audiences rocking with laughter by using such clown faces as he is wearing in the picture above.

Mr. Fred Skelton, adviser of the Limelighters, offers suggestions to Bob Stein, president of the club, and to Stacy Taylor, vice president at an executive meeting prior to a rehearsal for "Harvey." Preparing a report on the financial position of the organization is Debbie McNutt, secretary, and Jan Fabian, treasurer.

Preparing for a major stage production requires many backstage activities. Limelighters in the makeup room are Jerry Sigler, Tim Davies, Pat Harrison, Diane Valiquette, Diane OdNeal, Franci Beleguin, Jim Yates and Sandy Thacker.

Perhaps the best audience an actor can have is his fellow performers. Club members intent upon a rehearsal performance are Franki Bartek, Cheryn Castleman, Yvonne Jackson, Judy Harrison, Sandy Dubbs, Barbara Roadarmel, Ann Zimmerman, Pam Smith, Ralph Wooddell, Ron Gross, Brian Remmert, and Jim Brower Limelighters also become familiar with behind the scenes production secrets. Learning about the light controls are Kathy Nick, Donna Turnow, Diane Toth, Barbara Smith, Sharon

zetes bring books to clay and woe to candidates

The Zetes officers—Linda Bass, president, Carol Horst, treasurer, Marie Vogelbacher, secretary, Nancy Wagner, vice president, and Jean Koester, chaplain—stroll toward the Book Fair trailer; the Zetes sponsored the mobile book store again this year.

The Zetelethean Literary Society fulfilled its purpose of promoting literary interests, but it never neglected entertainment aspects for its members.

This year the Zetes initiation was held at the Pearson Park lodge. The new members were made to do a number of things, such as pushing onions across the floor with their noses, dunking for grapes in whipped cream, searching wildly for marshmallows in flour, and feeding each other chocolate pudding while blindfolded.

Sponsoring the annual Hootenanny, they brought in great school acts such as Val and Roud (Val Stevens and Roud Klog, the Folkmen (Jim Marlow and Ralph Woodell), and professionals Lore Archambeau, and Dave Snyder and Doug Bleckner. All this finger-snapping music was introduced by Clay's own Dave Rahla. The audience clapped and sang along, making an evening of pleasure for all

The Homecoming Queen of 1964, Mickey Penney, places her crown on the head of the 1965 queen, Patti Keene. Despite rain and blustery winds, both queens managed to look charming and to please the crowd as they passed in review

homecoming events maintain time honored traditions

Janet Bigelow with her escort, Jack Billings, Queen Patti Keene and John Szuch, Linda McCroskey and Tom Miller take their proper stations by the throne.

While the Varsity C remains fundamentally an organization for Clay boys who participate in competitive sports, its most important work was probably in an area completely divorced from athletics. Once again in 1965 the Varsity C took on the tremendously important job of providing Christmas baskets for some of the needy families in Oregon. The responsibility of providing a Christmas dinner for twenty-five families is not a light one. The boys not only conducted the traditional canned goods drive at school, but they also took it upon themselves to visit the local merchants to secure such items as canned meats, bread and milk.

Once the foodstuffs had been gathered, the Varsity C members then packed it into baskets and, using their own vehicles, delivered the baskets to the recipients. They again earned the respect of the entire community for this work; but more important they added to their own stature through their efforts on the behalf of others, and that is, after all, the main purpose of Varsity C—to build character.

The officers of Varsity C—Mark Warnke, treasurer; Bob Wahl, vice president; Tom Bahnsen, president; and Val Stevens, secretary—have the important job of directing one of the school's largest clubs. Among their many other chores is the big one of getting out Christmas baskets.

future teachers grow through education.

Pausing momentarily from their planning session are the officers of the Future Teachers of America: Carol Fleitz, vice president; Lois Cooper, president; Nancy Wagner, secretary; Jackie Ludwig, treasurer; Marie Vogelbacher, historian; and Nancy Nissen, historian.

Because they are dedicated to becoming the best possible teachers, the members of the Future Teachers of America worked hard to acquire skills which would help them in their chosen field. They attended lectures, listened to guest speakers, and observed adult teachers at work. Additional skills and information were gained by the FTA members when they participated in the annual clinic for Future Teachers of America which was held at Bowling Green State University.

The FTA, in addition to being an educational organization, provided many services throughout the year. FTA members served as guides at Open House, at the Science Fair, at the teachers' in-service training day, and at the meeting of the NWOEA. They also served coffee and rolls to the teachers on records day. Perhaps their finest service was working as teachers to free Jerusalem Elementary teachers so that they could attend the funeral services of a colleague.

These activities, then, together with bake sales and candy sales to earn money for their scholarship fund, contributed to a full and exciting year for all members of the FTA.

Working as clerks for the first annual FTA election day bake sale are Beth Harris, Marcia Bolcsak and Janet Schaefer. Mrs. Nancy Bahnsen, school secretary, arrived early for the sale.

Guide service for many of the activities at Clay is provided by members of the FTA. Here Sarah Holzhauer offers assistance to a visitor during the teacher in-service Training Day.

service, recreation

Prospective FTA members earn scholarship points through service activities. Luonn Ifland, Richard Tonk and Kathy Morse earned points by directing parents on Open House night.

Demonstrations in the language lab are normally accomplished with the students in their seats; however here Mr. John Felhauer, Spanish Club adviser, has gathered some of the club members around him to illustrate a point.

spanish and french clubs--

Since the members of the French and Spanish clubs are drawn from the classes that teach those languages, the goals of those clubs are to promote the interests of those students. These clubs throughout the years have offered the opportunity to speak and to read a foreign language in a group.

The language lab has been a valuable tool in the study of conversational French and Spanish. However, the clubs themselves are also valuable, for they gave members the opportunity to become involved in direct conversation with people who use these languages as their native tongue. Guest speakers, group reading and class criticism are some of the valuable benefits available to club members.

youth for christ--

The Youth For Christ Club is a Christian organization calculated to promote the teachings of Christ and of the Bible. Members also strive to show that American youths are not afraid to stand up and be counted as endorsers of the doctrines contained in the Bible. In the course of their meetings, members discussed passages from the Bible and strove to find applications for the philosophies of those passages in their personal lives. Favorite characters from the Bible were also examined with an eye toward discovering heroes of morality to follow.

The YFC met with other Christian groups for debates and for fun. With the addition of guest speakers to this busy schedule, the YFC found that they had both an active and a rewarding year.

Judy Rowland, president of the Youth For Christ Club checks the minutes of the last meeting with club adviser Mr. James Barnes while John Ritterbach, vice president of the club looks on. While the officers of the club do conduct business meetings, most meeting time is used in discussing religion.

Linda Hamman points out an interesting topic for discussion to fellow members of the Youth For Christ Club Helen Ritterbach, Sandy Wooly, Virginia Shaffer, Carolyn Bostic and Pam Ledbetter. Such discussions are designed to strengthen religious ideals in club members.

clay's vocaliers expand horizons through singing

Clay students have apparently discovered a new kind of pleasure—singing. The singing groups, the choir and the glee clubs, which were extremely short on members a few years ago, have become so large that it is difficult for the music room to accommodate them. Students, realizing that an active place will be found for them in either the choir or one of the glee clubs, throng into Mr. Falor's domain for the chance to sing for pleasure and for recognition.

In keeping with the traditions of the past several years, the choir gave concerts in all of the Oregon schools as well as making many guest appearances. The members of the choir made their caroling expedition throughout the district, even making an unscheduled stop to sing for Clay's ailing band director, Mrs. Nancy Bricker.

Wearing sweatshirts and jackets with the insignia of the A Cappella choir prominently displayed (this was the first year in the history of the school that such sweatshirts and jackets were worn), the members of the choir and the glee clubs sang their way into the hearts of the students of Clay and the entire community, and at the same time, they enriched their own lives with new beauty.

The A Cappella Choir officers—Brian Remmert, president; Dave Rahla, vice president; Judy Harrison, secretary; and Rody Reno, treasurer—pause for a moment's conversation before putting on their robes for a concert. The choir boasted over ninety members during the 65-66 school year, the largest group ever.

Clay High brought out talent galore for the tryouts of the 1966 Specialties. Many tried out, and those judged as the best made up the year's variety show. A lot of hard work and practice was demanded, and the culmination of efforts was presented to the school on Tuesday, the 25th of January. Music ranged from blustery, bold bands to simple, soft songs. Majorettes twirled with bright batons, pianists created moods while the spotlight glistened on the keys, and novelty numbers brought added sparkle. The audience was immensely receptive, a fact which spurred the performers on. All in all, Clay proved itself abundant with every sort of talent.

Ron Gross and Carol Semersky sang "Shenadoah" with Jim Marlowe accompanying.

The Clay Senior High School Band, maintaining the high standards which have come to be associated with it for the last several years, started the year with two very important triumphs. Led by Drum Major John Bruggeman, the band captured two firsts in summer parade competition—at the Fireman's Convention and at the Strawberry Festival.

Sparked by these two early commendations, the band clung tightly to its pledge for excellence and thrilled its audiences during both the football and concert seasons. Seldom hindered by bad field conditions during the football season, the band displayed imagination and precision during its halftime shows. Then, with such talent as Daniel Snyder, winner of the Outstanding Band Member Award, as a nucleus, it entered into a thrilling and successful concert season. The band had a year of which all can be proud.

students discover practicality of applied science

Electronics Club officers are Steve Blausey, secretary; Mike Gasser, president; Darrell Walton, vice president; and Tom Como, treasurer.

Interest in the field of electronics has caught many of Clay's students; and in an effort to nourish that interest, these young enthusiasts have banded together in the Electronics Club. Their primary goal is, of course, to enrich the electronics understanding of each member of the club. Perhaps this club, more than any other, receives tangible evidence of its members' successes; for these club members create and demonstrate to fellow members equipment personally conceived and personally constructed.

Members gave evidence throughout the year of being especially interested in radio. Several of them not only built radios, but they also put them into operation. Talking with fellow club members as well as total strangers came to be a rather common experience.

In addition to stimulating its members to create and to build electronic equipment, the club serves as a common clearing house and as an endless source of customers for all kinds, types, and sizes of electronic components.

Mike Gasser, Electronics Club president, explains the operation of an oscilloscope to other members of the club. Watching are Tom Como, Tom Miller, Dan Soncrant, Chuck Snyder, Bill Rigg, Steve Blausey, Dar rell Walton, Mr. Robert Kinney, B. Rodriguez, Dennis Dehart, and Walt DuPont.

Math Club members Jim Momenee, Bill Szekovits, Claire Thomas, Roger DeGood, Ruth Wolf, Shirley Mathews, Pat Blackledge, Phil Wells, Chuck Bathke, Sue Oppé, Marsha Gross, Terri Roberts, and Debbie Squires display an intense interest in the demonstration which is taking place

at the front of the room. The Math Club met monthly for the purpose of demonstrating and discussing mathematics in all of its complicated phases. The goal of the club—understanding

The Math Club works continuously to increase the interest and understanding of all its members in most of the various fields of mathematics. The theory of math is often discussed, but the practical application of mathematics receives its fair share of consideration also. During the school year of 1965-1966, members of the Math Club found a wide variety of new and interesting topics being presented for their consideration and discussion.

Often these discussions were centered around new concepts which were presented to the club by a guest speaker, for individuals from outside the school who are experts in their field of mathematics were frequently invited to attend the meetings and to contribute their knowledge to the Club.

While the Math Club has long been an active organization at Clay High School, the recent emphasis on science and its related fields has brought a sharp increase in the number of people who are seeking a better understanding of mathematics. Consequently, the Math Club during this year found itself in the enviable position of having a marked increase in its membership. More pupils than ever before expanded their knowledge through the efforts of this fine organization—the Math Club.

senior gaa offers glamour, grace and physical fitness

The GAA, Girl's Athletic Association, engaged in a variety of interesting activities during the year. The members participated in basketball, volleyball, and field hockey tournaments with other Toledo area schools. These same sports also provided competition for the three intra-organizational teams of the club itself.

Every Monday and Wednesday evening found about thirty GAA members at Eastern Lanes trying to perfect their bowling skills while feasting on pop and chips.

At the annual GAA spring banquet, five trophies were awarded: one was given to the girl who was judged to have been the most active member for the last two years—the one who participated in most sports, who bowled for the club, who was active in all club functions; one went to the girl with the highest bowling average, and the third to the top team in each of the Club's bowling leagues.

Even though the Y-Teens is one of the largest clubs in Clay High, the members managed to discover individual enjoyment and companionship through the activities of the group. Since one of the primary goals of the organization is to provide a source of wholesome recreational activity for its members, the meetings of the Y-Teens were generally planned to provide a festive atmosphere. Games and contests provided the core of the socializing, while well prepared snacks served as an added inducement to bring members to the meetings. As always, the big event of the year was the induction service which, this year, brought about forty new members to the club.

Chess Club members often use one another as opponents in an effort to perfect their skills. Engrossed in such a practice match are club members Tracy Cottrell, Butch Baranowski, Ed Black, Larry Jennings, Gary Fields and Shirley Mathews. Jerry Corlett has the opportunity of learning the techniques of all the players as he looks on.

Mr. Joseph Willmarth, seated, and Mr. John Felhauer serve as advisers to the Chess Club. Mr. Willmarth shows great concentration as he engages Marty Ziss in a game, while Mr. Felhauer and Del Stewart watch the movement of the pieces in rapt attention. This kind of concentrated effort becomes a mighty useful tool when transferred to school work. Chess players need concentration, mercy and witchcraft to be a winner.

Nancy Batch, Bruce Wallace, Teresa Drier, John Pollock and Claire Thomas work with the help of the Debate Club adviser, Mrs. Martha Johnson, to disprove a long accepted fact—debaters do not simply stand up and talk. ## ancient classical traditions

The Junior Classical League, which is open to all students who take Latin, featured again this year its annual slave sale and its annual trip to the state convention.

Encouraged by the success of last year's slave sale (that sale was a feature article in The Blade), the JCL held another slave sale this year. For a price, old members could purchase a slave from among the ranks of the new members. It was the obligation of the slave to then wait on his master or mistress in any chore assigned him.

Under the direction of Kathy Niehaus, club president and Miss Jean Garey, the new JCL adviser, the club attempted to establish a correlation between the society of classical Rome and contemporary Oregon. Even though the attempt was a giant undertaking, it served to bring the study of Latin to a practical level and to provide additional interest to its members; and, of course, that is the main purpose of the club.

With the entire industrial and business world "running scared" in the face of the onslaught of automation, those people skilled in office procedure remain calm and serene. They know that as automation rapidly soaks up the surplus of jobs, the demand for their talents will increase. It is to encourage students to enter the field of Business Education and to develop the abilities of the students in that field that the Future Business Leaders of America devotes the bulk of its efforts.

By honoring outstanding business prospects and by providing a social situation in which students with an interest in the business world can freely mix, the FBLA provides a service to the school, to its members, and to the community. Even though funds to operate the Club's varied activities are not always easy to come by (would you like to buy some candy?) it continues to function as an important Clay High organization.

The officers of the FBLA, Future Business Leaders of America, were reluctant to have their pictures taken without having a symbol of their vocation in the photo, but they managed pretty smiles anyway. Pictured are Judy Sayen, secretary; Marge Susor, vice president; Lois Ramstadt, chaplain; Linda McCroskey, president, and Charlene Monroe, reporter.

The officers are JoAnn Merriman, reporter; Barbara Powers, secretary; Sandy Carroll, county officer; Diane Canton, vice president; Linda Metzger, president; Mary Ann Groher, historian; and Glenna Allen, treasurer. These girls led the club in a variety of activities.

Seated in the Home Ec lecture room are members of the FHA. They are: Row 1 - Linda Zibbel, Helen Ritterbach, Mariann Drier, Sue Kingery. their parents in which both the food and the atmosphere suggested a tropical island.

While the FHA had a number of exciting meals for their guests and guests of other school groups, they have also mastered dress designing, tailoring, meal planning and preparation, and diets and nutrition, which proves that FHA activity requires both manual dexterity and stamina as well as mental ability.

Bio-Phy-Chem members Nancy Wagner, Maria Vogebacher, Dave Helman, Jim Brower and Dan Soncrant wear face shields as protection against possible accidents as they pursue experiments in their favorite field of study. Lab safety, while not treated as a subject, is never neglected by the budding scientists of the Bio-Phy-Chem.

Another small group of Bio-Phy-Chem members, Peggy Copus, Linda Renner, Ilze Arais and Peggy Dunberger, display their interest in science as they ready some chemicals for experimentation.

The centrifuge in the chemistry lab proves to be an interesting object to club members Sue Csizi, Bill Hofbauer, Bruce Winchester and Carol Fleitz. Working with equipment of this nature is a common experience for Bio-Phy-Chem members.

new member induction tops bio-phy-chem year

The purpose of Bio-Phy-Chem is to provide a graphic and interesting introduction into the varied areas of science to its members. To accomplish this the Club heard a number of speakers discuss such varied topics as petro-chemicals and mental health. Many field trips were employed toward this end also; and, of course, the meetings were often enriched by the showing of scientific films.

Social activities were an important part of the year's events also, the highlight of the year being the new member initiation. A new twist was given to the initiation when new members were sent on a scavenger hunt to find scientific specimens. Since the Bio-Phy-Chem is an honors group, it was felt that the initiation should accomplish more than losing prospective members in Pearson Park; hence, they conducted their rather unusual scavenger hunt. Apparently the idea was sound, for no one was lost and a great deal of fun was had by both old and new members.

Although staff members worked long and hard, they still found that the deadlines were extremely hard to meet.

In order to meet those deadlines it was necessary for staff members to master many new skills. While many of the difficult jobs of yearbook production may soon be forgotten, those bedeviling quilts will remain vivid memories.

yearbook staff discovers production schedule demanding

The production of such a complicated thing as a yearbook is not accomplished without making some errors. Section editors will long remember the chores of rewriting copy and doing lay-outs over and over again. Pictured here are Mike Shank, layout editor; Ray Dannell, organization editor; and Darrell Berger, section editor. They grin sheepishly as picture cropping errors are pointed out to them by Mr. Lawrence Haynes, yearbook adviser.

The purpose of a yearbook is to tell the events of the school year—to compile a pictorial diary of the year's happenings. The 1966 Crystal staff spent a great deal of time and effort, both at home and at school, to make this yearbook a complete school history. They have drawn layouts, written copy, taken pictures, conducted interviews, and compiled mountains of information from which to sort the few items worthy of Crystal recognition.

The staff of the 1966 Crystal also instituted a new training program for future staff members. Many of the staff traveled to one or more college workshops at Ohio University, Toledo University or Bowling Green State University to perfect the skills necessary to the production of a yearbook. New staff members, who were carefully screened from among many applicants, were exposed to a variety of training, including talks by professional men who work in companion fields, lectures and demonstrations by old staff members, and of course, the best teacher of them all—experience.

The Crystal staff moved into their new quarters early in the year with the idea of producing a fine yearbook. Activity in that room included layout, picture cropping and copy writing. Pictured at the left are some staff members doing those chores. Discussing copy are Lois Henninger and Sara Jane Steen. Behind them Ilze Arais and Denny Cousino check on cover design while Dolores Mominee and Janice Emch do some typing.

In keeping with the theory that a good yearbook staff is a trained staff, the Crystal acquired a number of new members for future editorial posts. They are Beverly Emch, Jim Stewart, Vicki Ovall, Becky Nagy, Karen Good, Janet Trowbridge, Carol Imen, Barbara Bumbera and Elaine Peters. Mike Shaink, layout editor, is discussing picture quality with them. An additional new staff member, Candy Lamoreaux, was not pictured since she was at home with a broken leg received when she fell from a horse.

Music for the 1965 Snowball was provided by the Bel-Airs, a group warmly received for years by Clay students. As the couples danced, the coaching staff and their wives watched them closely in an effort to select the best Snowball king and queen. Their selection was Mike Belcik as king and Chris Balogh as queen. Runners-up were Jim Vilhauer, Barbara Samuhel, Ralph Wooddell and Wendy Ford, all of whom served in the king's court.

Sock hops have become traditional. Hops after games, hops sponsored by clubs, hops called by many names; if there was an opportunity, there was a hop. Each hop differed from the rest, but each had things about it that were common to the rest. Feet without shoes kicked and stamped and wiggled to the rhythm of real "cool" music. Laughter and shouting and talking were practiced as much as dancing. Fingers snapped. The atmosphere was dim and gay, exciting and frustrating, simple and infectious. A hop was a hop for all that, and the kids loved every one.

in tribute

Hollow cheers from the stands serve as his wages. Strange, it seems, that anyone would work so cheaply; but how much does one charge for fortitude? What is the market price on fatigue, on bruises, on courage?

Take a boy, an average lad, take him and beat him; he can take it. Shove his face into the mud, smash his knuckles into the frozen earth; he expected that. Kick him, scold him, treat him badly; he won't complain. Only he and God know why he won't complain, but he won't. You can curse the boy for an honest mistake, boo him if you please, treat him as if he had conspired to cheat you, and in return he is apt to smile and say, "Thank you." He will not return your scorn, for he has greatness in him. He will not return your jeers in kind, nor will he flaunt his successes in your face. He will not retaliate. He has greatness in him; and he is a man.

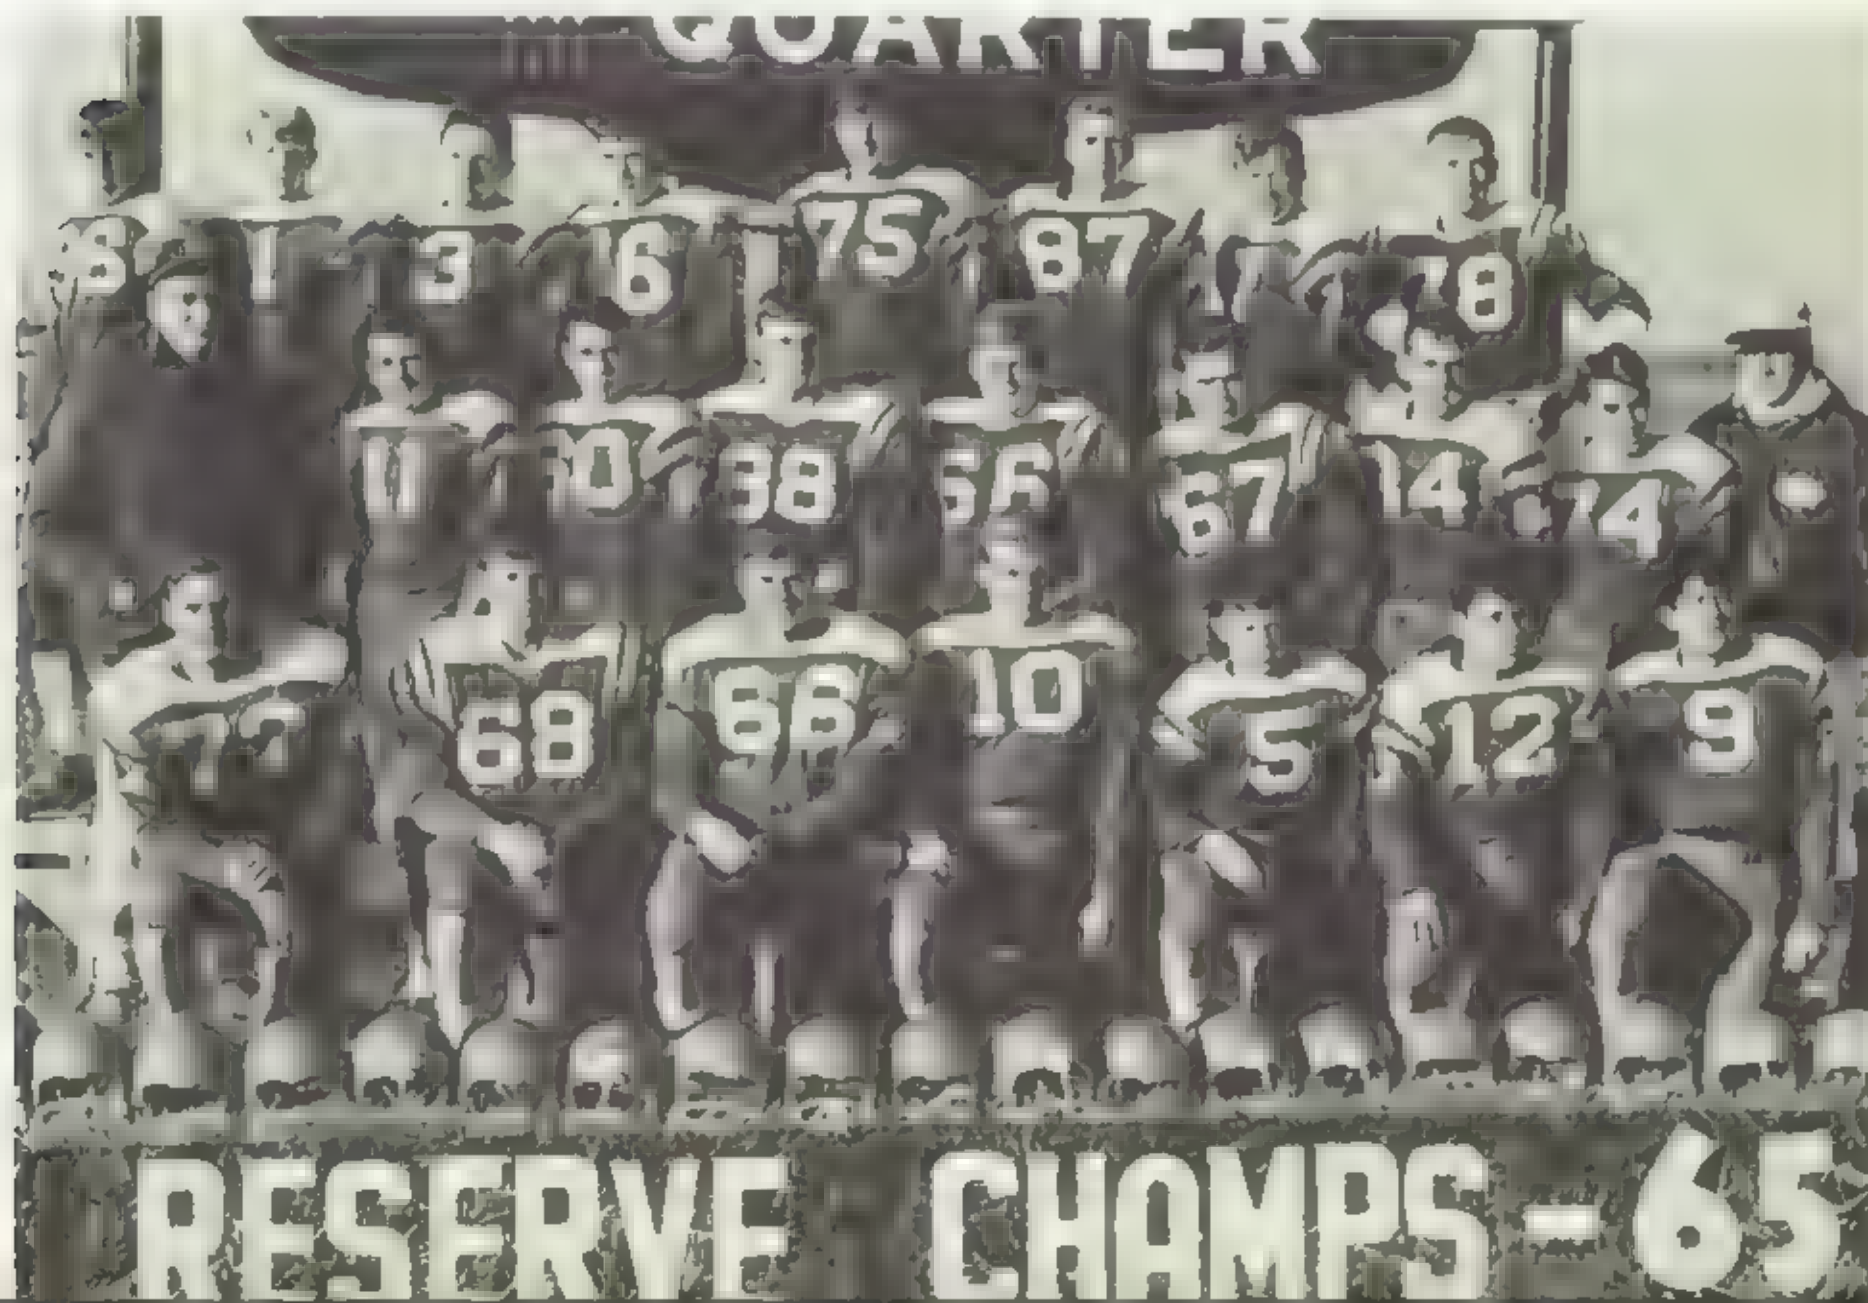

What are the wages? What price does fortitude command? The boy knows—inside he knows. You see, he does have greatness in him, he is a man, he is on the team.

Cold weather didn't seem to drive the spirit from Clay High Eagle fans.

The Clay High Eagles showed the fighting spirit necessary for a winning team from the beginning of the season to the very end. Starting off with a close victory over Lima Shawnee, they continued their winning streak until stopped by the Waite Indians. In spite of two losses at the end of the season, the Eagles managed to capture the Great Lakes League championship.

Most spectators would readily admit that this year's team was one of the finest ever fielded by Clay. They opened the season with the hope of being undefeated, a goal which they nearly realized. Perhaps of even more importance, however, was the constant display of spirit and sportsmanship which tended to uplift the entire student body.

During the 16 years that Ted Federici has been head coach at Clay, the Eagles have captured 8 GLL championships, 5 of them in the last 10 seasons. Ted Federici's record to date is an amazing 106 wins, 30 losses, and 11 ties.

Labor

The year 1965 will long be remembered by the football fans of Clay High. It was the year that saw Lima Shawnee bow to the Eagles in the opening game of the season. It was the year in which the Homecoming game was played in a downpour and played with the field lights winking on and off like the star on a Christmas tree. It was the year of the largest crowd in the history of Memorial Stadium—4500 wildly enthusiastic spectators. It was the year of seven league wins.

The year 1965 was the year of the initial football contest between the Cardinals of Cardinal Stritch High School and the Eagles. It was the year which saw the introduction of the Bird Cage Trophy as symbol of victory in football competition between these schools; the trophy found its first home in the Eagle's trophy case. It was the year of lost skirmishes and victorious battles. It was the year in which, for the eighth time under the direction of Coach Federici, the Eagles finished the season as league champions.

tions. Cheers don't just happen—hours of practice go into each one.

The members of the 1965 - 1966 basketball team gather around Coach James Routson and manager Mike Foster. Members of the team are Tim Kontak, Mike Belcik, Bob Zemenski, Randy Wallake, Ralph

All eyes are on the ball as Mike Belcik, number 34, reaches high in an effort to gain possession of the ball for Clay. Incidentally, he succeeded.

Randy Samu drops in two points against Waite.

Veteran wrestler Ervin Harris and his opponent move toward the edge of the mat in a close contest

Clay's grapplers provided the student body with fine performances during the wrestling season. The team worked diligently on the mats during practice sessions to prepare for matches with their worthy opponents. Returning varsity wrestlers were Fidel Martinez, Phil Dominique, Tom Miller, Mike Clark, Ed Borjas, Ervin Harris, and Terry Bell. These boys perfected their skills for competition in the GLL wrestling tournament which was held at Clay High this year.

clay grapplers grab league crown

Moving into the wrestling coach's job for the first time, Mr. William Coontz brought his grapplers through a successful year. Working from the theory that conditioning brings victory, Coach Coontz had the team members running the stairs, doing calisthenics, and trying anything else that would help them get into shape. Apparently his tactics worked, for the team won seven dual meets this year, and after racking up 74 points in the league tournament, the Clay Eagles were declared the Great Lakes League Champions for the 1965-1966 school year.

competitive program nurtures sports skills

Joanne Caswell draws a bead during GAA competition.

Senior girls develop skills in team sports and laugh too.

Basketball games provide girls with both thrills and spills; expertness is incidental.

Personality growth through league competition is complemented through intramural sports participation. While the boys bowl for league recognition, the girls bowl for the love of the game and because they enjoy the companionship of their fellow competitors. While the boys average over 170 pins, the girls celebrate if they break their average of 130 or 140. While league bowling for the boys took place on Saturday mornings, the girls invaded the alleys on Monday afternoons. Despite these differences, however, everyone enjoyed the game.

Enjoyment of all sports for both boys and girls through hockey, volleyball, and many other sports brought fun, health, school spirit and improved personality traits to the players from Clay High.

Mike Belcik displays excellent form as he delivers the ball. Bowling Team members met opponents each Saturday morning at Eastern Lanes.

The class of '68 is composed of typical teenagers. They are alternately serious, noisy, and fun loving, trying hard to get a good education for themselves.

In the next two years, they will produce their share of sports heroes and academic leaders, for they immediately raced into the swing of things and contributed their many and varied talents to Clay.

Typical? maybe . . . maybe not . . . but a group of students who love life and yet can accept its obstacles are well on their way to maturity.

juniors on the way up

The Junior Class officers—Ken Vas, vice-president; Chris Balogh, secretary; Gregory Davis, president; Caren Hrbac, treasurer—carried their discussion of class business out of the meeting with them.

After a harried sophomore year, the Junior Class successfully made the transition from one of "low-man" to one of respect and consideration. Many juniors were selected to honor the seniors by preparing the Junior-Senior Prom, and in return they enjoyed the junior breakfasts and the activities planned by the class officers.

Many boys showed their athletic ability by leading the various teams on to victory.

And finally, a few juniors were chosen to receive the highest honor Clay High students can achieve: The National Honor Society.

Yes, the Junior Class is looking forward with some regret, to the last step in their high school history.

All things considered, this has been a good year for the Crystal editor. Everyone has tried to make my job easier—administration, teachers, staff members, and students. I would especially like to thank Mr. Haynes, the advisor of the Crystal, and the rest of the staff members for their help in putting this book together. I will always remember the trials and thrills of my part in bringing you The 1966 Crystal.
